

In Southeast Asia, Central America and Africa, food is wrapped in banana leaves for storage and cooking, much like aluminum foil in the West.